Are solar lights a good option for your home?

Outdoor lighting boosts the aesthetics, mood, safety, and security of a property. Mounted solar lights are an excellent way to illuminate your home since they tap into a renewable resource—the sun. Another advantage of solar lights is they don't require any electricity, and therefore, wires.

What should I consider before buying an outdoor solar light?

Before purchasing an outdoor solar light, Apfelstadt recommends considering the product's IP (ingress protection) rating, lumen output, color temperature, and aesthetics of the fixture. "An outdoor lighting fixture should be IP 66 or 67," he says.

What if a solar light is in a shady spot?

If the solar light is in a shady spot, the batteries won't charge enough and the light won't work well. Some of the options we tested, like Maxxa Dual Head Solar Powered Wall Mounting Light, have adjustable solar panels that can be positioned toward direct sunlight if the light is being placed in a more shaded area.

Are mounted solar lights a good choice?

We spent several years testing mounted solar lights to narrow down our list of top picks. Outdoor lighting boosts the aesthetics, mood, safety, and security of a property. Mounted solar lights are an excellent way to illuminate your home since they tap into a renewable resource—the sun.

How does a solar panel work?

The solar panel has an adjustable base so it can be positioned to receive the most sunlight no matter where it is mounted. One of the best features is the accurate motion detection. The lights automatically turn on when motion is detected after dusk.

Do solar lights need direct sunlight?

Solar lights need direct sunlight in order to store enough energy to illuminate throughout the night, says Apfelstadt: "Solar is not a viable option in areas without consistent direct sunlight. If it's really cloudy or if it's rainy, then it's not going to be as effective." Placement is also important.
