A similar installation was also connected in R&#238;bnita. The construction and testing of the two solar collectors were made possible with the support of the EU Confidence Building Measures Programme, implemented by UNDP. In the cold season, the solar collector generates hot air, which can be used as a thermal agent for space heating during the day.

In this system, solar panels are directly connected to the power grid. Any excess energy produced can be fed back into the grid, and when solar energy is insufficient, regular electricity from the grid can be used. This is the most affordable solution, as there is no need for batteries. However, the system will not function during a grid outage.
